FROM THE EDITOR

Here in the mystical month of October, we observe the changing seasons and gear up for final part of the year. It's a time for consolidation and reflection — and for returning our focus to what really matters in life. The sun is in cool-headed Libra for the most of the month, transitioning later into deep and mysterious Scorpio. This a great time to put our affairs in order before we go deeper into spiritual and psychic dimensions.

You might think that the Obamas are fading from public view after eight years in the White House, but the truth is, nothing is certain. A look at this couple's astrological synastry reveals a dynamic bond that may have another chapter on the global stage.

Our talented psychic Chrissie then takes the reigns as she takes us on a fascinating journey through the art of mediumship — a fitting topic for October! She then looks at the mystical qualities of Opal, October's main birthstone.

We're thrilled to be part of your spiritual journey this October, and remember: Our team of talented psychics are here to lend psychic insight and support whenever you need it!

Love and Light,

Lauren X

“My life started to change very quickly and awareness grew into a calling.”

WHEN DID YOU FIRST DISCOVER THAT YOU WERE PSYCHIC?

Since childhood I have had an awareness of Spirit, but after a car crash in 1995 things really started to develop. My life started to change very quickly and the awareness grew into a calling. The need to work with Spirit evolved and eventually took me on a pathway, via Spiritualist Churches and psychic fairs, to where I am today.

WHAT ARE YOUR PSYCHIC TALENTS?

As a medium I am clairvoyant, clairaudient and clairsentient. Clairvoyant (clear seeing) this is the faculty by which a medium can see with the spiritual eye. Clairaudience (clear hearing) the faculty by which a medium can hear communications with the spirit world. Clair sentience (clear sensing) the faculty by which a medium can sense spirits presence and there messages, including smells, tastes, pain and emotions.

WHAT PSYCHIC TOOLS DO YOU USE?

As a spiritual medium I am able to use all three of the senses, clairvoyance, clairaudience and clairsentience. This enables me to relay messages directly from spirit guides and loved ones

CAN YOU TELL US ONE REMARKABLE STORY FROM A RECENT CLIENT?

I had a client who was in a seemingly impossible situation regarding the sale of her house and being able to afford a new home for her and her daughter. I was able to tell her that she would move in the month of march, that she would be suprised and what she got, and that she would not have to cross the threshold to know that it was the right property. She found a 3 bedroom house in the area that she both wanted and needed to be in. She put down a deposit on the property before actually entering the house. oh and she moved in in March. She has since told me that it is a her dream home.

WHAT DO YOU LIKE ABOUT READING FOR CLEAR PSYCHICS?

Working at Clear Psychics is both fulfilling and rewarding. There are such a variety of clients with varying needs. I feel that I am in a very privileged position to be able to help and enable so many people to find the right personal pathway to take control of their own lives

When their relationship started, Michelle was actually his mentor. She was a 25 year old associate at a corporate law firm in Chicago. After a year on the job, the firm brought in a 27 year old prodigy from Harvard as a summer associate, and assigned Michelle to mentor him. It wasn't a fast and furious courtship, despite Barack's brazen Leo charm. Michelle was notably cautious and reserved, as her Capricorn nature would dictate — but the pair had instant chemistry. Others at the law firm constantly noticed the two of them deep in conversation.

As friendship blossomed into romance, Michelle brought her suitor to the family home for dinner. They all liked Barack immediately, but didn't think he was last with Michelle. They knew that her standards in terms of dating were prohibitively high, even for a smooth-talking Harvard graduate. But later, in interviews, it would become apparent how hard she was falling, even if she maintained a reserved outward appearance.

If we fast-forward to 2008, when Michelle fist-bumped her husband of 15 years for clinching the Democratic nomination for President, we see a young and energetic couple whose star is on the rise (to put it mildly). There were a fresh, stylish and articulate pair who promised a progressive new era in politics. The world was seeing them for the first time, but the bond they had forged was deep.

The Leo-Capricorn combination is not traditionally seen as a great match. Both signs can be stubborn, and might want to run the show. If there is mutual respect, however — and certain other elements of astrological synastry — it can be a very dynamic combination.

That Michelle's Jupiter forms a beneficial trine to Barack's sun was a clear sign that her presence would amplify and expand his political ambitions. When he first ran for the Illinois State Senate in 1996, Michelle was reticent at first.

She was a brilliant lawyer and activist with a bright future, and didn't know if being married to a politician was the life she really wanted. But once she was in, she was in. Her tireless efforts (Capricorn is a steady and stubborn climber) were instrumental in propelling her spotlight-loving Barack to the State Senate, the U.S. Senate, and all the way to the White House.

Another important element between the two charts involves Saturn. This is the planet of rules, discipline and boundaries — in short, it's right at home in the world of law and politics. Barack's Saturn is placed in Capricorn, directly on top of Michelle's Sun. In many relationships, this would often create a stifling aspect where one partner is overbearing to another. But being a Capricorn, which is ruled by Saturn, Michelle actually thrives on order and routine. Barack's Saturn placement would have actually made her feel more at ease and centered as they climbed the ranks of political power together.

But it's also the everyday romance and love that keeps this relationship strong. A nice trine between her Venus in Pisces and his Venus in Cancer gives them an emotional, loving, watery bond that underlies the hard work of politics and government.

The idea that this fascinating and dignified couple are off the world stage following the mandatory end of Barack's presidential tenure has left more than a few people feeling down, but it's probably best not to jump to conclusions. Although Michelle Obama has said she won't run for President in 2020, the Democratic party may see her as the most popular and suitable of all candidates, should she decide to pursue her husband's former office. The Capricorn Sun and compassionate Pisces moon make her tough and sensitive at the same time, and it's not difficult to imagine the Obamas returning to power. Could they achieve what the Clintons failed to? Only time will tell. Either way, their love story and synastry is one for the history books.

October Horoscopes

Check out today's horoscopes at clearpsychics.net/horoscopes.html

Aries

Relationships of all kinds are going to be so important this month. But this is also about striking a balance between your own needs and those of others. The New Moon of the 19th really underlines this, and if this is hard to achieve, significant changes are possible as first Mercury and then the Sun pass across the newly arrived Jupiter in Scorpio. This can be brilliant for business.

Cancer

Don't underestimate the impact you can have on others with your utterances. The first third of October can see you particularly effective at framing your ideas positively to others. But this month is also a time of true opportunity. There may be changes at the base of your existence, and whilst at first these may prove testing, they're going to clear the way for you to really express yourself.

Taurus

With your ruler Venus cooperating with Mars for the first ten days of this month, and Jupiter moving into your sparkling 7th House on the 11th, some wonderful possibilities can play out for you, but particularly as far as relationships are concerned. If you meet someone this month, this can be a tie which is truly significant. Equally, unsatisfactory relationships need to be rooted from your world.

Leo

The energy from the Eclipse in August in your sign is still profound in your situation, and all sorts of new strands can be giving you a great deal of satisfaction. Your appreciation of the good things in life can also be really high, and there can be some really engaging conversations. But strangely, it can be life's simple pleasures, such as peace, tranquillity and calm, that call out too.

Gemini

You may find yourself going through some profound changes around your emotional situation and even how you feel about where you live, who with and your family ties. The biggest area of opportunity this month comes from a mixture of creativity and practicality. If you can get the right combination of the Sun and Jupiter from the 23rd to the 30th, it could prove amazing.

Virgo

With Venus and Mars combining in your sign through to the 10th, your sex appeal can absolutely sparkle. If you're solo, don't be surprised if there is an increased level of interest in you. For all Virgo's, this can be a time of re-defining your personal identity. Financial opportunities may require nimbleness, and your word and thought power soar from the 23rd October.

Libra

There's a tremendous amount of emphasis on your individuality and creativity this month, so do seize it with both hands. But also anything you've been working on tremendously hard over the last twelve months can start to pay off handsomely. There could be a genuine slice of financial fortune from the 17th right through to the end of the month, which can leave you beaming.

Capricorn

If you're travelling, it could turn out to be the most wonderful experience. Whether it's with one special person or a group of people, you can just feel a real sense of connectivity to others. You may though have to juggle with balancing work and home responsibilities, but the new vision of your future can start to shape up wonderfully well in the last ten days Capricorn.

Scorpio

Prepare for wonderment Scorpio, because Jupiter arrives in your zodiac sign for the first time in twelve years. But crucially it combines with both Mercury and the Sun in your zodiac sign too, and the second half of this month can see you benefiting from something that is uniquely individual about you or what you do. A friendship can also become so much more in the first ten days.

Aquarius

Your business acumen is heightened at the very start of this month, especially if you're fortunate enough to be in some kind of partnership, or a role which requires you to work skilfully with others. There can be some wonderful interactions too, with some surprising revelations. But your goals, ambitions and targets are given a huge boost in the last half of October Aquarius.

Sagittarius

At the start of this month your love life can take on a much more stable and durable dimension, if you are with the right partner. This may seem an obvious thing to say, but it's a fact. If you're single for example, you may find yourself drawn towards someone through your work or from a different age group. There can be plenty of opportunities for socialising too, and also a secret admirer.

Pisces

You have a real gift for creating the right impression, and with all sorts of people in the first third of this month. Any knowledge you have can also start to pay off brilliantly well. If you're involved in publishing, the media, Internet work, technology, teaching or training, expect to be in demand as this month goes on. This is also an excellent time to assimilate new skills Pisces.

October Birthstones

By psychic Chrissie

For those with an October birthday, there are two stones which are representative for them – the OPAL and the TOURMALINE. Initially it was just the OPAL, but TOURMALINE was introduced as it was seen as a less expensive alternative. The OPAL is also recognised as the present given for a fourteenth wedding anniversary gift. The two stones have very different features, depending on their formation.

For the OPAL – they are very unique stones and come mainly from Australia and they are formed in the semi-deserts, which are very dry. When the rains come, they drench the earth and over time the Opals are formed — but the mineral make-up of the earth surrounding them during this formation is what makes each stone unique. The colours vary across the spectrum, from light colours (including white) through different hues of blue, green and black. Since the middle-ages, these precious stones have been seen as good luck symbols, often worn to help ward off evil. Some of the stones are viewed as being more precious and some are cast as being common, depending on the overall look and makeup of the individual stone itself. They are said to represent faithfulness and confidence.

The word itself comes from the LATIN word OPALUS, meaning special jewel and they are highly prized across all cultures. One characteristic of the OPAL is the ability it has to change colour according to the lighting and angle of view, This is due to the formation and the minerals surrounding it during its formation. One famous OPAL is the FLAME QUEEN, which is shaped like a fried egg, with the red portion in the middle surrounded by a darker colour. This piece sold at auction for £250, 000.

TOURMALINE is seen as an alternative birthstone for October birthdays and is very different from Opal. While Opal is a cloudy mix of colours and hues, Tourmaline is a very clear stone and comes in a rainbow of beautiful colours, with the PINK TOURMALINE favoured most for engagement rings. Tourmaline are made up of crystal minerals, and like the Opals can vary in colour and hue. Most are typically mined in Brazil and Africa, though smaller deposits can be found in other parts of the world.

The way Tourmaline are formed is also very distinct. Unlike Opal, they form long, pencil like crystals, which gem-cutters then cut into long bar shapes called 'baguettes'. They can also be formed into single stones (e.g. for engagement rings or earrings). Due to the composition of the stones, they are sought after for their hardness and excellent durability.

There is no hard and fast rule over which you should choose as your birthstone; it's down to individual choice. They each have their own individual appeal, and with such vast ranges of colour, you will always be spoiled for choice!

MESSAGES FROM THE OTHER SIDE

By psychic Chrissie

For most people, October 31st is a date for celebrations and partying. Halloween is a special time of the year when ghosts and spirits abound. The tradition dates right back to the Celts — in England, Ireland & Northern France — who divided the year into 4 distinct phases. November 1st was seen as the start of the winter period, and Pope Boniface IV introduced it as All Saints Day (ASD) to honour the Saints. That's when October 31st became known as All Hallow's Eve ('hallow' means saint). The term was consolidated to Halloween, and it was seen as a special day when the boundary between this world and the spirit world was at its weakest.

People in those days felt that souls walked the earth after death as ghosts and spirits. They had a strong belief that some people had the special powers so communicate with the dead. These days, we call it mediumship. Mediums were highly regarded as having mystical powers, and they came into their own at the time of Halloween.

It was thought that spirits could break through the veil between worlds visit earth again on this day. Thus, in order welcome the deceased souls of loved ones, people would gather family together and celebrate with food and drink. They would welcome the spirits by lighting candles or small fires outside their homes to guide the spirits to them. It was considered dangerous to venture outside on that night, since all manner of ghosts and spirits could be marauding round. In order to distract them, people would put on strange masks and carry candles or flames to drive way the evil spirits.

There was also a desire to attract the spirits, and people often turned to mediums for this purpose. Mediums would use their powers to produce a suitable environment to attract spirits back to their loved ones. Talismans and charms would be used, along with special concoctions of perfumes, herbs and incantations. With these tools, the medium would use their own special powers to communicate between the living and the dead.

In 1848 the potato famine in Ireland caused thousands to emigrate to America, taking their culture and traditions with them. As they spread out across their new homeland, decedents continued to celebrate Halloween, making it more of a social occasion of celebrating by dressing up as ghosts, creatures and spirits — along with wearing the masks to scare them off. Lanterns and torches are still used to light the way; and by visiting other homes in the neighbourhood, the food has been replaced by the giving of sweets and other treats.

Mediums can communicate with the deceased throughout the year, but Halloween is now more of a festival than a serious event and seems to bring joy to a lot of people. So, maybe it's something we should look forwards to and enjoy for what it is!
